Historic Buffalo Point Retreat opens this month to the public

July 6, 2021

Buffalo Point Retreat is opening to the public this month, after serving as private estate since 2011.

WAUKOMIS, Okla. – Buffalo Point Retreat is set for a July debut as a boutique event destination in Oklahoma.

A private estate since 2011, Buffalo Point will soon become accessible to the public for the first time. Featuring a space for weddings, meetings, and other private gatherings and retreats, Buffalo Point's onsite lodging is a key selling point within the drive-to market.

A sprawling complex on more than seven acres of pastoral farmland, Buffalo Point is the years-long vision of owners Mo and Richard Anderson.

"Watching our dream of relaunching Buffalo Point become a reality has been nothing short of amazing and a true labor of love," said Mo. "After years of enjoying this special place with our loved ones, Richard and I wanted to share it with others and offer a beautiful retreat for people to celebrate life's special moments and milestones. After a year like 2020, there is a renewed appreciation for opportunities to come together with family, friends, and colleagues, and it is our hope that Buffalo Point will be a place where lasting memories are made."

Weddings, corporate retreats, and other private retreats and gatherings will be a cornerstone of the Buffalo Point experience, with The Barn serving as the primary venue for up to 80 guests. An Amish-style structure built using traditional timber frame construction, this technique relies on craftsmanship, quality wood, and mortise and tenon joinery. The 3,600-square-foot space features a kitchen for catering, loft and lower seating areas that can be set up as breakout spaces, a wide-open main floor space that can be easily transformed for a number of different functions, and A/V capabilities. For smaller or more casual gatherings, guests can utilize the outdoor courtyard in the center of the property, complete with a fire pit, grill, gazebo, and custom stone fountain.
